STAMP DUTIES AMENDMENT BILL 2022

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

This Bill seeks to amend the Stamp Duties Act 1976 (the “principal Act”) to provide additional relief to first time homeowners in the form of: exemption from the stamp duty relating to the instrument of conveyance, which exemption shall be dealt with under a pre-qualification procedure in relation to Head 14(b) and (c) of the Schedule; repealing of the requirement for first time homeowners to live in the purchased property for at least three years or complete construction of the property within three years; and exemption with respect to refinancing of a mortgage, in addition to transfer or assignment of a mortgage.

Clause 1 provides a citation for the Bill.

Clause 2 amends the principal Act in section 77 to empower the Minister to prescribe a pre-qualification procedure that is to apply to consider an application by a first time homeowner seeking exemption from stamp duty in relation to the final transaction of the conveyance.

Clause 3 amends the principal Act in the Schedule in Heads 14 and 31. In Head 14, paragraph (b)(C) is repealed to remove the requirement for a first time homeowner to live in the purchased property for at least three years or complete construction of the property within three years. Head 14 is further amended to insert a new paragraph (c) to provide for the exemption from stamp duty relating to the instrument of conveyance where the Tax Commissioner grants to the purchaser a notice of pre-qualification in the case where the purchaser has met the criteria under Head 14(b) and (c). Head 31 is amended to cause the exemption under paragraph (ab) to apply, in addition to transfer or assignment of a mortgage, also with respect to refinancing of a mortgage.
